

JONES WILL TAKE WEEK FOR REPLY

Thinks He Should Have Time in Which to Answer Attack of Forbes.

WILL SPEND TIME AT HOME

Former Governor of Philippines Is Severe in Denouncing Virginia Congressman.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Washington, D. C., October 4.—"You say for me that within the next week or two, as soon as I return to Washington from a brief trip to my home, where I am going to-night for a little rest, that I shall make public my answer to the attack of Governor Forbes, of the Philippines upon myself. I am compelled to go home for a little while, but immediately upon my return the public will know my position in this matter, as, indeed, the House and the War Department officials do already."

In these words Congressman William A. Jones, of Virginia, today told The Times-Dispatch correspondent what he intended to do regarding the attack of Governor Forbes made public yesterday when the latter sent to members of Congress a pamphlet entitled "Reply to False Charges Contained in the Speeches Made by William A. Jones, of Virginia, in the House of Representatives January 28 and February 13, 1913."

Reply Will Require Time. The pamphlets were scattered broadcast over the desks of members today, and there was hardly one who failed to receive a copy. Continuing his statement that he would answer this attack, Mr. Jones said:

"I think that it is nothing but right that I should have at least a reasonable length of time to reply to what has been said in this pamphlet. I shall certainly answer it, and it will be as strong as it is possible for me to make it."

After saying that he thinks there are those who believe with Mr. Jones that the United States would be justified in abandoning the Philippines, Governor Forbes continued his attack and said, among other things, "I repeat the false charges made in the House of Representatives by the Hon. William A. Jones, of Virginia, against me and against the American administration of the Philippine Islands. I repeat them in my own behalf, in behalf of my associates and in behalf of my predecessors in the insular government."

Member of Congress Is Exempt. A member of Congress has great power to harm the reputation of others; his high office gives weight to state-

Instantly Clears Air Passages; You Breathe Freely, Nasal Discharge Stops, Head Colds and Dull Headache Vanish.

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasal discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake to-night struggling for breath with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucus dripping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.—Advertisement.

ments and insures publicity to his accusations; he is exempt under the Constitution from liability, except to Congress itself, for any calumny that he may choose to pronounce in speech or debate; the courts are not available for redress to those whom he may slander; his statements are circulated and preserved in the Congressional Record.

On Other Side of World. "Mr. Jones, in addition to his capacity for injury, had the prestige of his position as chairman of the committee especially concerned with the Philippines Islands. It would naturally be supposed that he spoke with knowledge of Philippine affairs."

"We whom he attacked were on the other side of the world, where his charges could not even reach us for a month or more, and our denials could in no way be heard until long after the charges had been made. We had no adequate means of reply, and no right nor opportunity to be heard in the place where we were accused."

Governor Forbes then refers to Mr.

Jones "maligning" his countrymen, and charged the Virginia Congressman with bad faith in discussing the acquisition of the Philippines and the United States government and the independence. Those who know Mr. Jones are well aware that when he makes public his reply to this attack it will be well worth reading.

POTENTIALITIES OF GREAT SOUTH

Time When Cotton Will Indeed Be King, Enthroned, in Land of Dixie.

"Potentialities of the South in cotton manufacturing," says the Manufacturers' Record, "are emphasized by facts suggested in the figures of the season of 1912-13 dealing with cotton growing and cotton manufacturing."

In the light of progress in textiles made in the past twenty-five or thirty years it might seem superfluous to think of the South's potentialities in that domain. Thirteen of the fourteen Southern States in which cotton is grown spin cotton. In 1880 in these spinning States only 176,000 bales of cotton were taken by the mills, and those takings amounted to but 3.1 per cent of the crop of cotton raised in that year and only 10 per cent of the takings by all the mills of the country.

In the year ended August 31, 1913, the Southern mills took 2,365,555 bales, or 64.4 per cent of the takings by mills of the whole country and 20.9 per cent of the crop raised. The 1913 takings by the Southern mills were nearly twice as great as the takings by all the mills in the country in 1880. But, in spite of the progress thus indicated, the South has by no means reached its opportunities in the textile industry.

"In the 1912-13 season 7,155,000 bales, or more than half the total Southern crop, were raised in States west of the Mississippi River. In those States—Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas—only 150,000 bales were taken by cotton mills. The comparison of bales raised and bales taken by mills in the cotton-growing States is made in the following table:

State	Crop	Takings
Alabama	1,250,000	302,000
Arkansas	820,000	10,000
Florida	62,000	—
Georgia	1,920,000	655,000
Kentucky	250,000	27,000
Louisiana	390,000	18,000
Mississippi	1,642,000	34,000
Missouri	62,000	24,000
North Carolina	546,000	876,000
Oklahoma	1,051,000	8,000
South Carolina	1,281,000	72,000
Tennessee	312,000	83,000
Texas	4,852,000	61,000
Virginia	25,000	92,000
Total	14,167,000	2,570,000

"These figures show that the States which raised more than 50 per cent of the cotton took for their mills only 2 per cent of the portion of the crop that they raised. That is, it will be noted, a poorer showing than the one made by the whole South in 1880."

As a matter of fact, only two Southern States—Virginia and Kentucky—are and they growing but a comparatively small quantity of cotton, manufactured in 1912-13 more cotton than they grew. Texas, marketing 4,852,000 bales, or 34.3 per cent of the total crop, used only 92,000 bales. Georgia, ranking second in production, with 1,920,000 bales, used 655,000 bales, or slightly more than one-third its crop. The nearest approaches to use of the whole of a State's crop were made by North Carolina, which took 876,000 bales and raised 546,000 bales, and by South Carolina, which took 72,000 bales and raised 1,281,000 bales.

"These two States, as the Record set forth, are in the heart of the region which was set apart by nature as the situs of the cotton-mill industry of the country. If not of the world—convenient to the sea, with its ideal climatic conditions, close to water-power, the earliest force to be applied to the textile industry and the source of sufficient electric power to move the world. If other Southern States will press forward in textile lines as have Virginia and the Carolinas the day is near at hand when the South will manufacture all of the cotton it grows, and that will make the South the commercial and industrial empire of the world."

The Cotton Movement. New Orleans, October 4.—By his last official report to the New Orleans Cotton Exchange shows that the amount of cotton brought into sight during twenty-six days of the present season was 1,315,055 bales, an increase over the same period last year of 142,310 bales. The exports were 653,051 bales, an increase of 156,768 bales. The takings were, by Northern spinners, 124,000 bales, the increase of 60,430 bales; by Southern spinners, 181,721 bales, an increase of 22,750 bales.

MINER, RELEASED, FEELING "BULLY"

"Hello!" His Greeting to Rescuers After More Than Week's Imprisonment.

COMES OUT UNHARMED

Refuses Proffered Hands as He Walks From His Living Tomb.

Centralia, Pa., October 4.—Thomas Toshesky, prisoner since Friday of last week in an abandoned chamber of the Continental mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, walked into the open air a free and comparatively well man at 8:22 o'clock this morning. He was taken to his home in Centralia, three miles away from his underground prison, and at once put to bed, apparently none the worse for his remarkable experience.

It was 7:15 o'clock when the last barrier of coal was driven away, and Toshesky crawled through the opening from his prison chamber into the tunnel which had been steadily driven toward him by eager, willing rescuers. Several minutes later the first illumination was given to the outside world that the big task was completed and the prisoner was free. This was when a miner crawled to the mouth of the tunnel and called to the top of the mine for blankets and hot water to be sent down.

Herald Approach of Hero. The work of getting the man ready for his exit occupied the next few minutes, and at 7:38 o'clock a file of men emerged from the mine. The herald approach of the hero of the occasion, Toshesky, came from the hole with a gray blanket wrapped about his shoulders. Back of him was a miner with hands upraised ready to assist if he should be needed, and Toshesky walked with astonishing agility considering his experience.

When he stepped on to the wooden platform just outside of the mouth of the narrow world, and first able to stand upright, he paused for an instant and looked upward, as if in greeting to the world or scanning the steep and muddy zigzag path which led to the opening of the mine breach. His miner's cap was on his head when he crawled through the opening of the tunnel, and greeted his rescuers. His lamp was in place upon his cap and burning.

Toshesky wore the usual rough clothing and shoes of the miner. The most noticeable thing about him was a pallor which showed through the grime on his face, contrasting strangely with the other blackened miners, whose ruddy color showed even through the coat of dirt. Toshesky climbed the path to the rim of the pit almost unaided. A stretcher had been taken to the foot of the pit, and there were plenty of willing hands to carry him, but he would have none of it. His whole attitude from the time of the rescue until he disappeared beneath the blankets in his own bed at home was one of self-sufficiency.

Toshesky was glad to get out of his prison, but he acted as if it were an old story to him, and nothing over to make a great fuss. Once before in his career as a miner he had been entombed for nearly forty-eight hours. Half way up the pit Toshesky was stopped and posed for a photograph together with Dr. J. J. Porter, who had been in almost constant touch with him since communication was established Tuesday night, and to whom is largely due the good health of the man. Toshesky wore the friendly smile of any person in the vicinity when brought out.

"Hello," he greeted everybody who spoke to him. His only reply to questions as to how he felt was "Bully." Just before the end of the tunnel was enlarged enough to permit the passage of his body, the miners engaged in the work were chatting with him. One asked what he was doing. "I am getting ready to move," he said. "This is no boarding-house, no good bed, no spring, no nice boarding missus."

THINGS GOING ON ALL OVER VIRGINIA

Halifax County to Have Fair. Lynchburg Looking for Small Industries—Many Notes.

The people of South Boston and all of Halifax County are making great preparations for the big Halifax County Fair, which to put on October 21 and continue four days. A local paper says:

Many new attractions have been added to the program. The grandstand has been enlarged, an aeroplane and motor drome has been engaged, and there will be a display of $1,000 worth of fireworks, and Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan has been invited to be present on the occasion. South Boston is noted for her hospitality, and all visitors will be welcome, and a good time is assured to every one attending."

The Bedford Bulletin says: "The well known Magill Farm near Forest Depot, containing 250 acres, and the Browning dairy farm, about a mile distant from the Magill estate, have been sold by Venable & Ford to W. D. and L. J. Logan, of Illinois, the purchase price for the two estates being about $22,000 cash."

The Charlottesville Silk Mills has been incorporated with a maximum capital stock of $5,000 and the following officers: president, E. C. Rolker, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; secretary, E. C. McCarthy, of Charlottesville.

W. L. Seidman, of Norfolk, has been elected vice-president of the Macon, Dublin & Savannah Railroad Co., Macon, Ga. He is also assistant to the president, Seaboard Air Line.

The Emory Land Company, of which M. H. Honaker is president, will develop 200 acres in lots in and about the town of Emory. Several industrial enterprises are seeking sites at Emory.

The Hill City Creamery Company is the latest new enterprise booked for Lynchburg. It will start in a small way, and has plenty of room to grow. Lynchburg is offering special inducements in these latter days to small enterprises that are expected to grow immense as the Hill City with its big establishments in the shoe-making and other lines keeps on growing.

WEST POINT NOTES. Much Building in Prospect—Steamer for the Emory. West Point, Va., October 4.—The Chamber of Commerce met Tuesday night and a stock company was organized for the purpose of building houses to accommodate the new people coming into the town daily. The directors of the company have been appointed, but the officers of same have not been fully decided upon. The organization is to be known as the West Point Building Corporation, and twenty or more houses are to go up at once. There will be building done by others. With the deepening of the water around the town at West Point, the completion of the bridge across the Mattaponi River, and the prospect of a bridge across the Pamunkey River, the building of houses for many people and the many other signs of progress around West Point there comes a cry for a small steamboat on the Pamunkey. W. J. Taylor, of Elmhurst Farm, New Kent County, calls attention to the fact that although the Southern Railroad skirts the Pamunkey River on the north side up to the White House, yet a vast territory on the south side of the river has no transportation facilities whatever. That there are many farmers who would grow much produce to ship could they have the chance to do so, and that the White House, where he some of the largest and finest farms in Virginia, the farmers have no way of shipping their produce, except by the slow process of sail vessel, after a very long haul across the country.

A steamboat on the Pamunkey would awaken the farmers to grow larger crops, when, as the case now stands, they grow only enough for home consumption. The boat would not only handle freight, but many passengers would find it convenient to do their trading in West Point, which is the largest and finest farms in Virginia, the farmers have no way of shipping their produce, except by the slow process of sail vessel, after a very long haul across the country.

The stock books of the new bank

Alaska Gold Falling Off. It is estimated that the value of the gold production of the Alaska Yukon was $8,645,000 in 1912, compared with $9,550,000 in 1911. This decrease is due to the falling off in the output from the Fairbanks and the Hot Springs Districts, for the other Yukon camps either held their own or some what increased their output as compared with 1911. Probably the most encouraging features of the year's activity was the definite proof of the presence of workable placers in the Ruby District.
